President W. F. Boatwright of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday notified A. B. Carrington, Jr., John E. Harvie and R. W. Jones of their appointment as members of the committee to represent the Chamber of Commerce in giving assistance to the local post, American Legion, in making their plans for the 1934 state convention.

The men are named to work in conjunction with the legion in formulating plans, financing and handling the convention after it is in session.

The letter of President Boatwright follows:

Mr. A. B. Carrington, Jr.,
Mr. John E. Harvie,
Mr. R. W. Jones,
Danville, Va.
Gentlemen:

At a meeting of our Board of Directors yesterday representatives of the Danville Post of the American Legion reported that their invitation, which we had approved and endorsed, for their state convention to be held here next Fall had been accepted.

This convention will be a big and notable event for Danville and we are fully committed to give our best cooperation in making it a great success. I have appointed you a special committee on same, and you will be acting in conference with the officers of the American Legion as they work on their plans, and I count on you to give them a hearty and loyal support in all that they may ask of the Chamber of Commerce.

With yours truly,
W. F. Boatwright,
President.

MUCH TOBACCO SOLD ON AHOSKIE MARKET

AHOSKIE, Sept. 15.—More tobacco has been sold on the Ahoskie auction market within the last two weeks than any previous week in the market's history in a similar length of time. Unusually good prices for the first offerings, which are mostly first primings, has been the cause of the big breaks that have taken place during the week. On Wednesday and Thursday, the sales each day lacked only a few thousand pounds being as large as the opening day. Eighty-five thousand pounds were sold here Wednesday, an average of a little better than $24.50 per hundred.

The new buyers have also arrived on the local market this week, giving Ahoskie a large crop of buyers representing all leading tobacco manufacturers and several independent firms, than the market has ever afforded heretofore.

DELIVERIES ARE LARGER IN EAST

(Special From Tobacco Growers News Bureau.)

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 15.—Large increased deliveries to the Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association in eastern North Carolina this week brought its receipts to well over three and a half million pounds, according to L. V. Bobbitt, director of warehouses for the eastern belt, while deliveries of 4,100,000 pounds reported by C. O. Dixon, manager of warehouses for the southern belt bring the total receipts of the association in that section for 1933 to more than its total receipts from the South Carolina belt during the whole of last season.

Tobacco growers of the old belt of Virginia and North Carolina, who heard of the success of the association in South Carolina from its Senator E. D. Smith, of that state, at a mass meeting in Danville and Henderson this week, are preparing to market their crops at the association warehouses, which will open soon. Association officials are predicting that the co-operative plan will receive a good majority of the present crop in the old belt, which is considerably larger than appeared from early estimates.

Successful cases in the courts of two states during the past week resulted in the continuance of eleven injunctions brought by the tobacco association against insurgent members of Martin county before Judge Geo. W. Connor, of the superior court at Fargoe, who dissolved eighteen injunctions brought by Martin county members seeking to prevent the association from interfering with the delivery of their tobacco on the outside. A complete victory in the court of Campbell county, Va., was won by attorneys for the tobacco association before a jury, which rendered a verdict against John F. Oldie of Concord, for selling part of his last year crop on the auction floor of the county court house for $13.10 the hundred, damages of 5 cents per pound for all tobacco delivered outside of the association. E. L. Haynes, a Barkdale and J. D. Abbott, appeared as counsel for the association in the case, while Wallace and Randolph Harrison represented the defendant. The jury was out for only ten minutes.

Eastern co-ops who have enjoyed the high advances of their association on first deliveries of their 1933 crop, out did the old belt growers of Virginia and western North Carolina in welcoming Senator Smith, of South Carolina, at Rocky Mount and Wallace Friday and Saturday. At Rocky Mount the far bigger leader and celebrated with a barbecue for which one hundred hogs were donated by the locals of the co-operative associations of eastern Carolina tobacco and cotton farmers at Wallace. The celebration of the eastern co-ops reached the highest point when Senator Smith told the farmers of Sampson, Pender and Duplin counties that "the principle of co-operation is a fixed law of God as the law of gravitation. Every individual must bring himself to realize this truth. When it was realized those who produce the wealth of the world will enjoy their share of it."

Congressman Hallett S. Ward of Washington; Director John R. Hutchison of Virginia Extension Service; President George A. Norwood of the Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association; M. O. Wilson its secretary and J. Joyner, chairman of its organization committee are other speakers who have appeared at the mass meetings which have reached close to ten thousand farmers during the past five days.

CO-OPS MOUNT FOR BIG PICNIC

ROCKY MOUNT, Sept. 15.—A feast of oratory and barbecue marked a monster gathering of members and friends of the Tobacco and Cotton Co-operative Marketing Associations from Nash, Edgecombe and adjoining counties of North Carolina, which was held at the Fair Grounds today with an estimated attendance of 3,000 persons.

The days program opened with a parade of approximately 150 automobiles through the business section, after which the crowd repaired to the grounds to hear addresses by Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina; Hon. Hallett S. Ward, Congressman from the First North Carolina District; President Saunders, of the Cotton Growers Association and Dr. J. Y. Joyner, director of the tobacco growers.

After the parade the outdoor meeting was called to order by R. J. Works, who called on Dr. Joyner to present Senator Smith, whom he termed "The chief champion of the farmers' interests in the legislative halls at Washington." Senator Smith after being given a tremendous ovation by the gathering spoke upon the development and progress of the world but declared that with all its progress "We have not solved the simple problem of the proper organization and distribution by the producers of either the tobacco or the cotton crop of the Southern States."

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—Broadway, main artery for residents and tourists alike, is a busy thoroughfare. These days it's like a vegetable garden.

For instance, every shade of cabbage appears in the women's dresses. Tomato is a favorite color. The citrus kingdom, Heliotrope and orchid speak a word for the flowers.

But vegetable tones rule. The dark, ruddy complexion of the ripened beet, the dissonant emphasis of carrots, greens attuned to the dusty-dry of vegetable stems long standing in the field.

The vegetable crowd the sidewalk, ready to be shunted into the picture shows, soda fountains, department stores, only an occasional man, like a black beetle among the pods, stalks through the press.

It was out at the United Studios. They were shooting stills for Donald Crisp's new picture, "Pompala," an epic about South Africa. The set was cluttered with Englishmen.

"What's it all about?" asked a newspaper man.

"Crisp was a Boer war captain," explained the assistant director. "There isn't a man in the bunch of extras below the rank of major. Oh, yes! Those two young fellows on the end are lieutenants. But they're of noble blood."

"You mean those extras are of the English nobility?"

"Sure. Every last man—except that old guy with whiskers. He's Kommandt H. DeRoy. He fought on the other side in the Boer War. General of the Free State army."

"That's the first I've heard of."

go well past the 2,000,000-pound mark, it was believed in market circles today. The independent growers, who probably have handled full two-million pounds by the close of the business for the week Friday night, while the Cooperative Marketing Association will have received several hundred thousand pounds. "Co-op" receipts have been heavy the past few days.

Prices continue high on the open market, with medium and poor grades in good demand, while speculation advanced according to member planters. Much of the weed brought to the independent houses here since Monday has come from distant points. Jones, Pitt, Green, Duplin, Craven, Lenoir and Johnston counties having contributed hundreds of thousands of pounds of the nearly 1,500,000 pounds sold during the first three days.

FARMERS ARE BUSY CUTTING AND CURING

GRETNVA, Va., Sept. 15.—A large quantity of tobacco is now on the hill and farmers have been very busy this week cutting and curing but the rain on Saturday retarded ripening and again on Saturday of this week will make the cutting later as farmers of experience are very loth to house tobacco until ripe as the quality of the plants after being cured is decidedly better when the moisture on the hill and always commands a much better price. Some few have about housed their crop but more tobacco is now outstanding than at this time for many years.

"Co-op" members are cutting and curing tobacco in the hills and are making a much better price. Some few have about housed their crop but more tobacco is now outstanding than at this time for many years.

There are more artists and would-be artists in southern California than any other spot this side of the Quarantine.

For example, the Pasadena Community Players. This volunteer group have been giving Los Angeles and environs European plays which never would have been presented a boxoffice attraction.

Recently the group put a fitting climax to the summer's efforts by picking up August Strindberg's "Lucky Pehr."

It was a happy choice. Strindberg was a happy choice. Life as it is, propped on vain ambitions and a sense of disillusion.

The very imperfections of the production seemed to fit the picture. They typified the fragmentary, in part, feeling of the play—even at its best. And the occasional flashes of real beauty and earnestness typified the great moments life holds—even at its worst.

Tells of Meeting Bishop Beauchamp At Polish Mission

The following interesting private letter, written to Danville by Mrs. A. Witt, a former resident of Danville, now residing in Poland, will be of interest to all who are concerned in the promotion of friendship among people of different nationalities. The letter was not written for publication but permission to give certain portions of it was secured by Danville Bee.

"We had an uphill job all winter on account of money depreciating very few days, but he has learned to buy material as fast as money comes in."

"We are all well now, though the children were all winter. The climate is severe on them but they have improved in health and color. I think to the very best. I have not too rich food. However, dear Mrs. Gayer, it was not so much of ourselves I wanted to write to you but the Methodist Mission here in Poland. We met Bishop Beauchamp (former pastor of Main Street church, Danville) here in Poznan before Easter, and also his son and other Americans in the party."

"He intends to return to Poland and will make his home in Warsaw. He likes Poland better than Belgium. The people are more tolerant and liberal in their views of religion. The mission in Warsaw is doing very well out of the one in this city is having a hard struggle—the priests are so terribly against it."

"Mr. Welch is having a hard time, and I realize what the missionaries have to put up with, always coming back poorer than ever. The authorities interfere on one pretext or another. We have services in English and many English speaking people."

"Singing the same songs we sang at home and a French woman plays the organ. There is a commercial school, also a sewing class and kindergarten class. Our Berta keeps the kindergarten and talks to the children in English."

"The girls told Bishop Beauchamp they did not like over here and he told them of the work to be done and arranged to put Berta in the orphanage near Warsaw, in Kersiew, where he will do the English correspondence and also teach English to the director and teachers. We have met American Red Cross nurses at the hospital where they train many Polish girls for nurses. They are very friendly and visit us."

"When we first came we could not get used to seem so much poverty on one hand and on the other, so much wealth—the contrast is striking. All winter people came to the door begging for bread—even little children, blue with cold—so we gave them hot soap to warm them up."

"Conditions have improved some. I am glad to say. Many go to France, about 15,000 a month, so after awhile there will be an entirely new country. We live in a pretty part of the Botanical Garden, so the children have a pretty place to play. The ways of the people are so different here, and it took a long time to get accustomed to them. As a rule the people are well dressed—how they manage it is a mystery. The cafes are mostly always full and cozy and warm. There is no drinking so much beer as the Germans, but certainly my, even the women smoke them, and are not considered 'smart' unless they smoke."

"I will close for this letter and I would like to hear from you and Danville. We send best regards to you and family, also to the ladies of St. Veron. My dear sister and Rev. Mr. Robertson and wife. I expect Mrs. Turner Hamilton's class is larger than ever. I was just planning to enjoy Sunday school when I had to leave. I send best love to Mrs. Brimmer and to Mrs. Woodward and hope they are well. I would like to see you all again."

"Once more, best love to all. I remain,

"Sincerely yours,

"MRS. A. WITT"

Innocent Woman, Jailed Twice, Freed; Her Accused Prisoner

BY MILTON BRONNER.

LITTLEHAMPTON, England, Sept. 17.—With the sentence of Edith Swann, a 32-year-old seamstress here, as the woman with the poison pen, comes to a close a tragedy that blighted the lives of an innocent family and kept a guiltless woman in jail for months.

Three years ago this little seaside town began to seethe with poison pen letters. Almost everybody was getting them. Some were almost driven to distraction. The authorities seemed helpless. Finally suspicion was cast upon a woman.

Mrs. Rose Gooding, highly respectable, living here with her husband and children, was arraigned on a charge of being the guilty person. The principal witness against her was Edith Swann.

On her testimony, Mrs. Gooding was convicted and given 18 days in jail. But the letters did not cease. In March, 1921, Mrs. Gooding was once more brought into court. Once more Edith Swann was the principal witness against her. Once more a jury found her guilty of being the author of the letters and this time Justice Avory sentenced her to 12 months imprisonment. But the letters kept right on.

Thanks to the disinterested work of a police constable, who was a friend of the family, Mrs. Gooding's innocence was absolutely proven. She was released after serving two months of the sentence and the government gave her £250 in compensation for the wrong done her.

Soon there was a dramatic change. Edith Swann, who had twice been the chief prosecuting witness, was now herself placed in the dock as the writer of an obscene letter to a neighbor's wife. She was acquitted.

The authorities were at their wit's end. The police and the post office finally worked out a scheme whereby they would sell marked stamps to various people under suspicion and then watch to see how the stamps were used. The scheme worked. They caught Edith Swann. She was once more arrested and charged with mailing an obscene letter to a sanitary inspector.

Gardner Leads Field In Medal Play of Tourney

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, twice medal holder, led the field in the qualifying round for the national amateur golf championship at Flossmoor with a par 74, while Bobby Jones, of Southampton, and Chickton, of Chicago, twice amateur and once open winner, tied for second place with 75.

Only one stroke behind, Albert S. Eckle, of Chicago, and James Manton, of St. Louis, tied for fourth place with 76, while Rudolph Knepper, of Sioux City, George von Elm, of Salt Lake City, Francis Flossom, and Dave Heron, of Chicago, had 77 for the course.

It was the second year in succession that Gardner had led the qualifying in the first half of the qualification, having scored 71 at Brookline last year, only to slump to 80 the second day and drop the gold medal to Jesse Guilford, of Boston. Guilford today did show the golfers where the good Gardner was two years ago at St. Louis in the finals, taking 43-40-83.

Another Boston former champion, Francis Ouimet, had some hard going, taking 42 on the second nine for an 80, the same score made by Jess Sweetser, of New York, the present title holder.

William C. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, title-holder several years ago, scored a good 78, one stroke better than Willie Walker, of Los Angeles, formerly British champion. Findlay Douglass, of New York, who won the crown 25 years ago, took 84 today and unless his score on Monday is materially better, he stands in danger of failing to qualify.

John G. Anderson, of New York, once runner up in the event, failed for the second time in 17 years to qualify when he withdrew after taking nine strokes on the 126 yard water hole, where he changed from golf to water polo for a time, sinking three balls in the pond, which stretches from tee to green. Richard Walsh, of New York, Natick links champion, made a good bid to qualify by shooting 42-39-81.

Gardner shot nine holes in par and got five birdies, including three in a row at the finish. He was two over par figures with a six on the 417 yard sixth hole, where his second shot hit a tree at the elbow of the boom-erang hole. He was one above par on three holes, his birdies just canceling his overshoots, so that his total was par 74.

Jones and Evans had exactly duplicate scores for the first nine, each scoring one above par on the sixth and the short seventh, and being exactly par on the other seven holes for a 35. Coming home Jones and Evans duplicated par on the first two holes, but Chick shot a birdie four on the long twelfth to Bobby's par five. Jones got a birdie two on the baby 13th but was two over par four on the 334 yard 14th, where he hooked his drive into a thicket whence he barely extricated.

NEW PENETRATION TREATMENT FOR PYORRHOEA CASES

Dentists say that a great majority of people either have Pyorrhoea (Riggs Disease) or Pyorrhoeal tendencies. The disease is sore, receding or bleeding gums, constant or loose teeth, pus pockets and bad odors. Pyorrhoea not only affects the gums and teeth, but also your general health, as the pus, which is very poisonous, is absorbed into the system, causing serious stomach troubles, the results of which are sometimes fatal.

You can now treat pyorrhoea at home and get relief from it. A formula known as Creosene, the new discovery that, through penetration, carries a powerful but harmless germicidal, which creosote (the greatest germicide known), tissue-destroying, agency known and used by dentists for years) is the base, right to the roots of the teeth, killing the pyorrhoea germs, making the gums healthy, tightening up and preserving the teeth, healing pus pockets, relieving pain and destroying odor caused by decayed or abscessed teeth.

Creosene is pleasant to use, and should be used by every one who wears a plate, as it keeps the gums firm and healthy and free from pain. $1.00 at your druggist and your money back if it fails. Creosene Co., Atlanta, Ga.—adv.

MRS. ROSE GOODING AND CHILDREN HAPPY AFTER THE MOTHER'S TWO YEARS IN JAIL FOR A CRIME WHICH SHE DID NOT COMMIT. INSET: EDITH'S WANN, SENTENCED AS THE REAL POISON PEN WRITER

The jury found her guilty. Justice Avory sentenced her to 12 months imprisonment. And now for the first time in years the Gooding family is able to smile. For the shadow which hung over the mother has been raised.

The outcome of this British poison pen case recalls the Maxwell affair in America. After suspicion had been cast on him, and a grand jury indicted him, George Maxwell, wealthy music publisher, sailed to America to face the charges of being a poison pen writer. But the case was thrown out of court and Maxwell was vindicated.

but the ball-bobbed the cup on the downhill putt and he failed by a hair. Evans and Jones were even with Jones. There were 19 scores under 80 and 13 over 80 making 32 men who had 80 or better and indicating that the 32 qualifiers after Monday's 18 holes round would have to make 180 or better for the 36 holes in order to enter the match for play for Sweetzer's title.

Film Shows Work Of Tobacco King

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 16.—Man delights in viewing his handiwork and recalling mental pictures of the stages of his progressive development.

But J. B. Duke, tobacco king and development, goes one better, for he is having filmed the development of the Catawba River Valley in North and South Carolina, where his hand has turned a listless river into a gigantic generator of electric energy.

"The Romance of the Catawba" is the picture's title, and it will depict the development of the valley from Indian days to the present. It is not a commercial picture and its vivid scenes will never flash upon the silver screen of the movie theatre.

It will be shown only for the pleasure of Duke and the few friends of the man who in the last two decades has played with millions in realizing his dream of Southern progress through hydro-electricity.

The picture is to be six reels and in it will be woven a plot which will tell a coherent story of the passing of time from the idle roaming of Catawba Indians to churning turbines, generating current to light cities, moving street cars, and humming spindles in many cotton mills.

Just when they arrive here remains to be seen but it is understood that the Southern will make the shipment as promptly as possible. The cars will be unloaded at a point near the street car tracks as possible and will be run to the metals and drawn under their own power to the barns. Recently it was stated that on one Sunday soon after the arrival of the cars the street car company would put on a reduced rate in order to give the public an opportunity of inspecting and riding in the new cars.

He Dresses To Match Her Gown; Even His Complexion Counts

BY MARIAN HALE
(Special to The Bee.)

PARIS, Sept. 17.—In the midst of all this talk about styles for women, it is well not to neglect styles for men, because in Paris the careful complements Juliet's, or at least that it does not introduce a jarring note.

It is quite customary for a woman to announce to her suitor what type of frock she is going to wear on a certain occasion, so that his choice of colors may conform to hers, instead of starting an argument.

If she is going in a gray costume, he sees to it that his hat band and his necktie are as near the same shade of gray as it is possible to get.

Just An Accessory.
If she is wearing gay colors, he properly brings her gaiety into relief by dressing very soberly himself. In other words, the gallant Frenchman regards himself as an accessory, and dresses accordingly.

In Danville, where the fashionable women of the world are vying with each other to create a picturesque effect, it is said women are choosing their escorts more for their pictorial value than for the charm of their society.

I gave a little cry of consternation as I heard the patter of those luscious beads and saw them rolling out toward the dancers. Both Harry and Jack ran to pick them up. I, of course, had gathered the string, on which were the remaining beads, up in my hand.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, so sorry Mrs. Prescott," said Harry. "Your pearls are so beautiful. Do you know how many you had?"

"Eighty," I answered promptly, for I remembered Alice had been very careful to tell me how many there were in the string.

"Count those you have now and let's see if we have them all," said Harry.

Two or three waiters had been standing around and I noticed that as soon as Jack had said, "Oh, don't worry about them, they are only very fine imitations," these men began to look under the table and each of them came up with three or four more beads in their hands.

It came to me they thought they were real and were holding out some hurriedly I counted them and found there were 79.

"That's near enough," I said, but all the time I hated to lose one and I guess I was rather nervous and uncomfortable until Jack said it was time we were going home.

I tied my beads up in my handkerchief and slipped them into my bag. The evening had been a failure and Jack was cross as we took the taxi to the apartment.

"I can't understand," he said, "why Ruth Ellington, when she knows her husband likes her to dress quietly will appear in as flamboyant an evening dress as she did tonight."

"That is easily accounted for," I answered. "She doesn't believe what Harry is telling her. Have you ever seen Harry Ellington with a woman who hasn't been most conspicuous unless that woman was his wife? Ruth was quite the loveliest woman in the room and almost every other man beside Harry had told her so."

"What do you mean, Leslie?" "I mean that every man who is so particular to have his wife dress quietly can always be depended on to pay great attention to the most brilliantly dressed and most conspicuous looking woman in the crowd. Harry Ellington had better be careful, Jack. He has overstepped the bounds to many times. Ruth is beginning not only passively to dislike him but actively to hate him."

"Of course, I don't know whether he wants to keep his wife or not but if he does he had better be using some of the same tactics he uses so freely in his attentions to Miss Chapman."

"I'm beginning to think you are a cat. I see it would be very dangerous for me to flirt with another woman, Leslie."

"That is according to what you mean by dangerous. If you want any other woman more than me, I think I should step aside and let you have her."

Says His Fiancee Is Held Prisoner

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 17.—Armed with a marriage license, William Smith, of Lynchburg, Va., Saturday laid siege to the house in Northwest Baltimore, where he says his fiancée, Miss Margaret Jones, of Richmond, is held prisoner.

Smith, a young man of 24, came to Baltimore Saturday night and stopped at the Emerson Hotel, with the intention of marrying Miss Jones Sunday. They had been close friends for more than 18 months. Miss Jones came to Baltimore not long ago to visit her aunt.

According to Smith, he had told Margaret Jones' sister of his intentions and he believes the sister spread the news to the aunt. He called on the young woman last night, told her to he had a marriage license and made an engagement to meet her at 7 o'clock Sunday morning.

They then went to find a minister and be married. Smith kept his appointment, but the young woman did not arrive. Smith waited until 10 o'clock and went to the house.

"When I got there," Smith said, "I found the door locked and could not get in. I am sure she wants to marry me, but I believe her aunt will not allow her."

The disappointed bridegroom then went downtown and talked to the police. He asked them to send a man to the house, but the central office mer said they could do nothing about it. He visited Captain Burns, of the detective bureau, but could get no help there. He also visited the marriage-license bureau, believing the official who issued the license could help him.

Disappointed in his search for aid the young man put his marriage license in his inside pocket and informed the police he intended to wait outside the house until his fiancée came out.

WHEN DEMPSEY LOOKED DEFEAT IN THE FACE

Dempsey pitches headlong through the ropes onto the shoulders of Kid McPartland, one of the judges of the fight sitting at the ringside. This was in the first round of the fight after Dempsey had cored Firpo three times. The blow that sent Dempsey through the ropes was a terrific right high on the side of the jaw, which came in rapid succession after a similar blow. Had Firpo landed either of these blows on the "button" he would have been the new heavy-weight champion of the world. As it was the bell ended the round a few seconds after and Dempsey knocked out Firpo in the second round.

GEORGIA COURT GRANTS APPEAL IN POISON CASE

(By The Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 15.—"Where a person, with knowledge that liquor contains the poisonous and deleterious ingredient, known as wood alcohol, furnishes same to another, or places it where he knows that such other person will find it and drink it, that person is liable for the wilful and intentional injury of the victim," the Georgia court of appeals held today in granting Mrs. Catherine Bristol of Baltimore, a new trial of her $150,000 damage suit against John Kelly, Atlanta capitalist.
Mrs. Bristol charged that Kelly had furnished her with liquor containing wood alcohol while in a Baltimore apartment, rented by the Atlanta man, which resulted in the partial loss of her sight. The case was decided against the plaintiff in Fulton superior court October 1921, but she later was granted a new trial and allowed to amend her declaration. Kelly's attorneys appealed.
The Baltimore woman first charged that Kelly furnished the alleged poisoned liquor to her wilfully, but later amended this so as to charge carelessness.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW DRAW CHURCHMEN

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Religious statesmen and educators from all parts of North America, as well as the foreign missionary field, have gathered here for the program of the International Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which will be held at the University of Chicago, September 19 to 23.
The celebration at St. James Church of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the first chapter of this world-wide religious fraternity will be a feature of the convention. A five-day conference for boys enrolled in the junior department of the brotherhood also will be held.
The brotherhood was founded in 1883 by James L. Houghteling, a Bible class teacher, and subsequently became national and later international in scope. It includes organizations in the United States, England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the West Indies.
The convention is expected to bring together the largest group of men and boys ever seen in the history of the Episcopal church for a like purpose.

Consecration of manhood in service is to be the theme of the conference. Edward H. Bonnell of Philadelphia, president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the United States; Dr. Nathaniel Butler of the University of Chicago; the Rev. Sheldon M. Griswold, bishop suffragan of Chicago; the Hon. Franklin Spencer Edmonds, of Philadelphia, and the Very Rev. J. P. D. Lloyd, of Halifax, will make opening addresses.

Following a business session Friday morning a joint meeting of the Men's and Boys' conferences will take place and will be continued in the afternoon with an address on "The New Challenge of the Junior Brotherhood to the Men of the Church" by G. Frank Shelby, of Philadelphia, general secretary of the national brotherhood.

MARINES LOOKING FORWARD TO EVENTS OF COMING WEEK

(By The Associated Press)
CAMP COOLIDGE, Va., Sept. 15.—The marine camp here was gay with flags and bunting today as the men of the Quantico expeditionary forces gave a final polish to arms and equipment preparatory to their "Sunday at home" tomorrow and to the long program of events in which the expeditionary force participates next week.

With the strenuous days of the outward march over the marines are looking forward to the gala events of the coming week with eagerness. Besides the official entertainments, the huge historical spectacle of the battle of New Market, the football game and other features of the official program, there will be dances, teas, dinner and entertainment almost every day.

Tomorrow the marines will hold formal "Sunday at home" in their camp here, to which the people of Staunton and the surrounding country as well as automobile tourists visiting in this vicinity are invited.

Monday will be spent in a number of staff councils and lectures to the troops in which the final explanations will be given of the two military spectacles to be produced. An effort will be made to make clear the exact nature of the battle of New Market which it is planned to reproduce as it actually was fought by the Union and Confederate armies and as such a battle would be fought under modern conditions with all the modern implements of war with which the marines are equipped.

On Tuesday, a final dress rehearsal for the battle will be staged under conditions in the Sixties. Final rehearsal under modern conditions will be held Wednesday and the following day the marines will go to New Market. At one o'clock on Thursday the historical representation will begin. Marine officers will take the parts of Union and Confederate troops. A feature of the representation will be the participation of the V. M. I. cadets who will re-enact the part played by the V. M. I. cadets in the original battle. Some of the original battle cadets will witness the exhibition.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the war drama and a long list of distinguished guests are expected to attend. Among those who have accepted invitations to be present are Secretaries Work, Davis, Wallace, Denby, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Governor E. Lee Trinkle of Virginia and his party of 30 guests and many other high government officials, diplomats, army and navy officers, officers of the G. A. R., Confederate veterans and other

INSIDE STORY OF WORK AND WILES OF A BOOZE SMUGGLER

(By The World-Wide News Service.)
LONDON, Sept. 15.—You may think this story a strange one, but nevertheless it is the truth, as I am prepared to swear before any tribunal. Liquor smuggling between the continent and the United States is done on a big scale despite the extreme vigilance of the American customs officials.

I fell into the bootlegging business quite accidentally when I signed on an English liner, running between Hamburg and New York, as an assistant steward. After completing the first voyage I was told by the second steward that I should be required to work down in the store room. Accordingly the next trip out I became concerned in the issuing out of the ship's stores.

After being there two or three days the storekeeper sprang a surprise upon me by remarking "I suppose you know we have some contraband whisky aboard? If you'll fall in and do your share towards getting it away we'll give you five per cent. of the profits."

Forces of circumstances caused me to fall in with the scheme at that time. The next day I accompanied the storekeeper to a drying-room in the second-class alley-way, and when he unlocked the door I saw fifty or sixty bags of flour within. Nothing else.

When I asked what we wanted there the storekeeper, with a mysterious sort of air, said, "Pull those bags aside and we'll see where the whisky is." Sure enough, on this being done I saw some thirty-five cases, each of which I found out later, contained forty-eight bottles of whisky bearing the label of a well-known Scotch firm.

What the Tea-Chest Held.
The reason for placing them there, I was told, was to avoid the Customs at Southampton. At intervals we removed the whole of the cases from the drying room to the bulk-room, adjoining the store-room. The removal took place at night, when the coast was clear, and when we had got all the cases down below we unpacked the bottles and placed them in the tea-chest, and so successfully hoodwinked the New York customs officials when they reached the ship on our arrival.

About a quarter of an hour after they had gone I was doing ordinary routine work when I was surprised to see a rough-looking individual, a proper New York bruiser, with a broken grin, come down the store-room steps gruffly inquire for the storekeeper. After they had had a pow-wow together the storekeeper said to me, "Give me a hand to load this fellow up."

So from the tea chest we fetched the 25 bottles of whisky. I was wondering how on earth the bootlegger, for such the man proved to be, was going to get the stuff away undetected, but I soon tumbled to the ruse he was accustomed to adopt when he opened his coat and displayed beneath a kind of leather jerkin, lined all the way round, with deep pockets into these pockets he stowed away the whisky bottles, and buttons dup again, looking a somewhat corpulent individual, but one who was likely to arouse undue suspicion.

After paying for the stuff, he made his way to the stern of the ship and disappeared down a rope ladder into a waiting launch, which ran him ashore at a secluded spot. During the next five days some 15 or 20 other bootleggers visited the store-room and were loaded up in the same way as the first, and departed in a similar way. They all came under cover of darkness, and no one on board ship seemed to interfere with them in any way.

Customs' Seal Broken.
So great was the business done on this trip that before we left the storekeeper having sold all the contraband spirit, obtained further supplies from the ship's own wine and spirit room, which had been placed under seal by the Customs. This fact, however, did not prove a hindrance to the storekeeper, for after cutting the official seal away, and extracting what he wanted, the storekeeper produced a very good facsimile seal from his pocket, and inserted it in the place where the other had been. The extent to which this trafficking goes on can be gauged from the fact that many of the bootleggers, men with plenty of money behind them, run special motor-cars to convey the stuff away when it is landed to some secret depository in the "land of the dry."

The fact that the severe punishment awaits these men if caught acts as no deterrent, and there can always be found someone to carry on the work in the place of another who has been so unlucky as to be caught. Hundreds of dollars change hands on these trafficking deals, and the very fact of no one interfering with the bootleggers when they board the ship is convincing proof that more than one or two of the ship's company are concerned in the game.

I remember the day before we left on this trip the chief steward said "I'll stand by while the last load goes ashore tonight." He did, and everything went off satisfactorily.

Immense Profits Made At The Game.
From what I learned on this trip I can tell of the modus operandi of these modern day smugglers. In Hamburg there is a certain German well known in the underworld, who guarantees for a certain fixed sum to get spirit and any other contraband goods aboard any vessels without detection. He runs several boats from the shore to the big liners with the contraband disguised as ordinary cargo. Fruit boxes are employed to convey spirit from the shore to the ship. Beneath the top layer of apples, oranges, or bananas are bottles and bottles of whisky. This spirit has the largest sale in these unlawful transactions.

Despite the fact that the bottles bear the labels of well-known Scotch distillers there is not the slightest doubt but that the spirit is an imitation manufactured in Germany and bought at a great advantage by the ship's company for sale in America. Generally speaking about two dollars a bottle is paid for the stuff, which on arrival at New York is doubled in price, so that it can be easily seen that enormous profits must be made by these whisky-runners.

On the trip I have mentioned a profit of over $5000.00 was made by those who had only a few bottles of whisky smuggled into America, but also contraband, which also finds its way in large quantities into this country. In one boat that was raided recently a little hidden away in one of the ship's boats was found to be full of cocaine. The cork had been cut out from beneath the canvas and the dope substituted.

By the time action was taken the vessel was on its way to New York again, and when a wireless message was sent out to the captain to have the ship searched from top to bottom hundreds of bottles of whisky being smuggled to the United States, were found in the crew's quarters, in addition to those which the storekeeper had in secret charge. The latter managed to drop his little lot overboard before New York was reached, and the whole thing was hushed up after that.

The bootleggers in New York threatened to settle me once and for all the next time I set foot on American soil. As they work in gangs, and will stop at nothing to achieve their ends, I am quite sure they mean what they say. Just as the whole thing was brought to light and bootlegging was being stopped so far as the vessels owned by the company whose services I was in were concerned, I took the trip New York in another company's boat.

One morning I was having breakfast at Nussan's safe near the docks when I saw that I was being closely

MAN LOOKS LIKE LINCOLN, SO IS NICKNAMED "ABE LINK"

ARTHUR M. BENNETT, WORCESTER, MASS., RESEMBLES ABRAHAM LINCOLN, IN A STARTLING IMPERSONATION OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN—AND AS HE IS.

(Special to The Bee.)
WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 17.—"Reincarnation or resemblance?" Abraham Lincoln has come to Worcester, certainly in resemblance if not in reincarnation. Fame surrounds a young man named Arthur M. Bennett because he looks like Lincoln, acts like him, talks like him—and they say, even thinks as Lincoln did.

Startling coincidences such as these have put Bennett under a long observation by Andrew O'Connor, the sculptor who is noted for his statues of Lincoln and who, in his work has made a study of the Lincoln anatomy. "From the eyes down," says O'Connor, "the faces and figures of Lincoln and Bennett are nearly identical. Build up the forehead a little and the resemblance is absolutely startling."

Bennett, who has been a printer and a toolmaker, and the past summer a guide at Moosehead Lake in the Maine woods is called "Abe Link" by the fellow workmen in Worcester. Lincoln was six feet, three inches tall. So is Bennett. And he has the same rugged features, the same strong lines at the mouth, the humorous, kindly lips, the deepest eyes, and the almost ungainly length of leg below the knee.

"He walks like Lincoln," says Charles Huntley, 81, one-time soldier and sentry at the White House, who often saw Lincoln at close range in the fall of 1864. Bennett has appeared in several impersonations of Lincoln. And those who know him say that without consciously trying he has acquired the philosophy of Lincoln which rings true in words and actions. He has the emancipator's shyness, and talks little—and not at all about his resemblance to Lincoln.

Everything was fixed up for me in the United States. The bootleggers had been quite upset over the shortage of supplies and had become so desperate that in one case they had even raided a ship's stores and carried off twenty cases of whisky. Through my efforts made all in good faith, to stop this business by giving information to the authorities, I now find myself a victimized man.

I am now known to most of those who have a hand in whisky-smuggling on ships, and by hook or crook they mean to keep me out of a berth. My only chance now is in being able to get a berth on another company's line which does not touch America, and that is no easy job these days.

THROUGH CIVIL CASES
All cases on the civil docket of the corporation court necessitating trial by jury were disposed of last week, and there remain a number of questions of law in other cases which will be submitted to Judge Waters during the early part of the coming week. It is expected that by Thursday the present court session will have closed. The first Monday in October will see the opening of the regular civil term.

"HOUSE" DID NOT DISCUSS STORESLAND AVE. CROSSING
The Schoolfield "House" session on Thursday was not marked with any discussion of closing the Storesland avenue crossing where a dual trackway was recently created. It had been reported that a bill would have been introduced providing for the elimination of the crossing, but later reports were to the effect that the bill Congress felt that it was a matter for the company officials to take up with the Southern Railway Company.

MINISTERS ARE TOLD TO ATTEND TO SOUL'S WANTS

NEW GAVIN, Conn., Sept. 15.—Before the ministers of the general Unitarian Conference Institute Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of the Harvard medical school said today that doctors of divinity should not allow doctors of medicine to monopolize ministrations to spiritual wants, as he declared, physicians are now doing.

"Is there any good reason why the medical profession should assume charge of peoples' souls as well as their bodies?" he asked. "I see no reason why the ministry should allow the medical profession to quide the spiritual life of the community. It is not possible, however, for a minister to attend properly to his parochial duties without a more thorough study of human personality than is given at the present time at any theological seminary."

Dr. Cabot believed clergymen should invade the field now occupied by the doctor. His stock in trade should embrace both physical and spiritual disturbances, Dr. Cabot said, adding that "miraculous healing has occurred and many at any time when great desire to heal meets great faith in the possibility of healing."

1924 Model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car $995

The Price of This Car Is Misleading

Some buyers take it for granted that cars which sell at about the same prices are equal in value. This is distinctly not the case. To buy on this basis would be an injustice to yourself.

You can pay several hundred dollars more than the Light-Six price and get a car that represents no greater, if as great, intrinsic value as the Studebaker Light-Six.

Or you can pay about the same price as the Light-Six, or less, and get a car that is high-priced when compared with the Light-Six because it does not represent as much for the money invested.

And in the Light-Six you enjoy all the advantages of smooth, flexible, dependable, six-cylinder performance.

You get a beautiful, substantial, well-built, roomy and comfortable car.

The practical absence of vibration in the Light-Six is a notable achievement. It is due largely to the fact that the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting rods are machined on all surfaces. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars within hundreds of dollars of the Light-Six price.

Stop in and see the 1924 Model Light-Six.

Test it for yourself—drive it and make your comparisons. Driving is believing.

After seventy-one years of service the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

A new daily serial

INSTALLMENT I.

STANDING BEFORE a window in her friend's Fifth avenue home, Valerie Knight somberly stared out at New York. She had an unpleasant impression, as she did so, that the city, like a sinister personality in the snow-enveloped twilight, was returning the stare with one of actual menace. And yet, in that past which was so recent and seemed so remote, Valerie had loved New York, and New York had allowed her to fancy it returned her liking. Even as it now wrapped itself in the storm and coldly stared her down it had then warmly taken her to its bedizened bosom.

She admitted the warmth had been impersonal. She had known few New Yorkers. Her life in the big city had been the life of its hotels, of its restaurants and theaters and cabarets, of its picture galleries and concert halls and shops. To all these her father had taken her in that ceaseless quest for amusement at which his daughter had often marveled. Almost she could see him now, handsome, carefree, perfectly dressed, seated in a hotel dining room—any good hotel dining room—turning his whimsical smile on her across their table as he lit his after breakfast cigar. Almost she could hear the music of his charming voice, "Well, dear, what's the program for today? Anything you like, you know." After which the program for the day usually became what he liked.

The business that ostensibly brought him to New York was never allowed to interfere with his diversions when he got there. Joseph Henderson Knight had been a butterfly all his life, and never so happily and persistently a butterfly as in his late thirties and early forties, when he could tuck his only child "under his arm," as he expressed it, and "trot off to the ends of the earth" if he chose. He chose frequently, and the life the two led together had appealed to Valerie almost as much as to her father.

Unlike him, she often paused to think; but she was young and she had inherited something of his roving nature. When, in her thoughtful moments, Valerie felt the lack of seriousness and stability in her delightful companion, she checked the inner criticism with a feeling of disloyalty that included a sense of shock. There were times, also, when she had to check different thoughts—thoughts concerning her mother, who had died when Valerie was 12. The child had been too young to realize why the gentle, repressed little woman had not fitted better into her brilliant and rapidly shifting backgrounds. The grown daughter had flashes of understanding, flashes that were sometimes rather blinding.

Then had come years of even more rapidly changing backgrounds than Mrs. Knight had known—years of incessant travel and diversion. Before she was 21 Valerie knew most of the countries of the world better than she knew her own. She had sailed thousands of miles on the Nile, had ridden over Asiatic steppes, had skied and fished in Norway, had studied the beauty of Chinese and Japanese temples, of Moorish mosques and European cathedrals, had listened to nightingales and watched bull fights in Spain, had climbed innumerable mountains, had shot big game in India, had drunk tea in English rectories, sketched Greek and Roman ruins, studied in French convents, and, with her father, returned periodically and gladly to America.

And New York was now staring Valerie down. It was doing worse than that. Through the late November storm which swirled past the window the girl thought she received the message that went with the icy gaze.

"You think you're all right because Anne Sterling has taken you in, and because for the present you are safe and warm and fed," New York jeered. "But that can last only a day or two more. You can't cling indefinitely to your friend's skirts. Wait till you leave her! Then you will be at my mercy!"

Valerie turned from the window with a shiver, seeking the reassurance of the beautiful Sterling living room, with its huge fireplace and burning logs, its atmosphere of peace and permanence. Dropping into an easy chair before the fire, she fixed her eyes on the flames and tried to control her fear. Fear was in itself an experience new and terrible. She could not remember ever having been afraid before.

ALL THE INGREDIENTS that go to make a good story—romance, mystery and adventure—are combined in this new daily serial by Elizabeth Jordan. The story is based on some strange events that take place in an American country home. Valerie Knight, suddenly left penniless in New York, is the heroine. You'll enjoy the way this romance is worked out in its quick moving daily installments. Don't miss this new serial.

Attack Made On League of Nations

(By The Associated Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—A lively discussion of the covenant of the League of Nations which Hjalmar Branting, of Sweden, charged had shown itself to be fragile in practice, drew the Geneva deliberations to a dramatic close today. The sub-committee was considering the proposed pact for mutual assistance, which was provisionally arranged at Paris as a compromise of the British and French conceptions of the project. When Mr. Branting arose and said the treaty appeared to be all guarantees and no disarmament and more coercive than conciliatory.

After all, he declared, the covenant of the League had in practice proved ineffective. He questioned whether it was wise to adopt the more stringent measures provided in the new treaty when they could not enforce things already existent.

This allusion to the Greco-Italian crisis brought Lord Robert Cecil to his feet with the vigorous assertion that there was no question that the League had lived up to its duties. He argued that the League could not be conciliatory and coercive at the same time and that there was no justification for any charge that the League had failed. Lord Robert tried to make clear that, as there had been raised as to the competence of the League in the Greco-Italian affair, the League by its collaboration with the ambassadors' council had not avoided its duty and declared that the occupation of Corfu, if it clearly came within the purview of the League, was merely in suspense pending clarification of the eventual Italian attitude.

Information received at Geneva that Premier Mussolini might not withdraw his troops from Corfu until the assassins of the members of the Italian boundary commission were convicted and executed, is regarded as increasing the chances that the assembly soon will insist upon a discussion of the League's competency.

Lord Robert Cecil closed his speech with the remark that the small nations must be ready to make sacrifices.

M. Lange, of Norway, retorted that the small nations must have guarantees from the big powers, whose foreign policy could be based, notably on living up to the articles of the covenant which required that all treaties should be published and registered, and by agreeing to compulsory jurisdiction for the court of international justice.

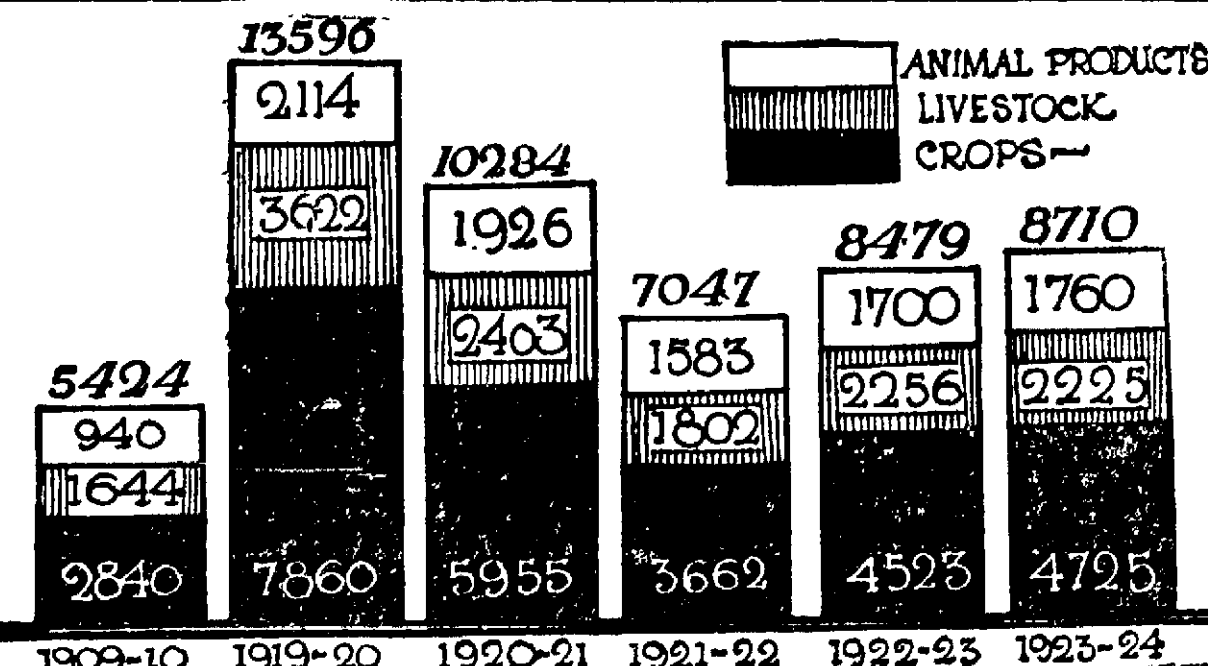

RACES CLOSED AT BELMONT

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Two important races closed the Autumn season at Belmont Park today.

Mr. J. P. Widener's colt, the bay colt, won the right to equal consideration by Zev in the choosing of an American horse to meet Papyrus, the English derby winner, in the $100,000 international match race to be run in American on October 20. My Own beat Unity, the only other entry, by two lengths.

In the future stakes for two year olds, six furlongs, straight, St. James, G. D. Widener's colt, with Tommy McTaggart up, beat a field of nine starters with Admiral Grayson's filly, Fluvanna, second. The value of the stakes to the winner was $64,810. My Own's margin of victory over Unity at a mile and half was about the same as that scored by Zev over the same filly in the realization. Many were of the opinion that My Own accomplished the victory with greater ease. Which horse will meet Papyrus is now up to a committee named to make the selection.

Farmers' Income Gains; Only $10 For Each One Of Family

ESTIMATED SALES IN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS OF CROPS, LIVE-STOCK AND ANIMAL PRODUCTS FROM YEARS 1909-10 TO 1919-23 BY THE AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION.

BY GEORGE BRITT

(Special to The Bee)

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The average farmer's son may be able to take his girl to town to a show one more time this winter than he did last.

The farmer's daughter may have an additional new frock, provided she doesn't go in for expensive material and will make it herself.

Their father, if he happens to be one of those rare specimens who conforms to the average, will have about $10 more to spend for each member of his family than when he sold his crops last year.

Compared to that expansion of income, even the clerk who got a modest raise of $10 a month is making fair progress, and the anthracite miner who blasted loose a 10 per cent wage boost is in a different class.

First Estimate. The announcement is based on estimates of H. W. Moorhouse, director of research of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The estimate deals only with prospective sales of farm products and not with the fourth or a fifth a previous comparison which was based upon department of agriculture figures for the value of crops. Incidentally it is the first detailed prediction ever issued of the gross cash income from sales of farm products.

Sales for the last crop year aggregated $8,479,000,000, Moorhouse reports, and for the present year, the forecast is $8,710,000,000, a gain of $231,000,000. The estimate covers 16 leading products, including crops, livestock and animal products. The controverted estimate based on crop value placed the increase at a billion dollars.

"The billion dollar estimate would indicate that corn alone would bring $600,000,000 more than last year," explains Moorhouse. "That assumes that the entire crop is sold as corn at 70 cents. The fact is that at least 40 per cent of the crop goes into pork. Only about 20 per cent actually reaches market, as corn."

$231,000,000

The gain estimated in the farm bureau figures is accounted for in probable increases in the value of cotton and of dairy and poultry products. Corn is expected to bring in more cash. Cattle and tobacco will bring about the same; wheat and hogs, less.

The $231,000,000 estimated gain in income is to be divided among approximately one-fourth of the population of the United States—that proportion deriving its income from agricultural pursuits.

"The wheat farmer of North Dakota probably is the hardest hit agriculturist in the country this year," says Moorhouse. "He is a one-crop man, and his crop isn't producing money. The Minnesota wheat farmer in many cases makes money on his dairy. The corn-belt farmer will break just about even with last year and the cotton farmer will show a sizable gain."

The crop year covered in the estimate is from July to June, the great bulk of the money being received around the month of October.

Communists Had No Part In Many Crimes Committed

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—A description purporting to show that the Communist Party of America was founded amid dramatic secrecy atop a mountain in the Catskills 28 months ago, and has mushroomed into the United States and Canada, is contained in the fifth of a series of articles made public today by the United Mine Workers of America, charging a movement to bring America under the banner of the Moscow communists.

At first, the article asserted, the party was an "underground" organization, functioning in secrecy. Today, according to the miners, it has a membership, direct and auxiliary, of 1,000,000, with interlocking directorates binding it to 45 national organizations and 200 locals and working in the open.

Prior to May, 1921, the Communists International was represented as having become so impotent through federal prosecution and deportation of members that formation of an "underground" society was determined upon.

And so, having chosen one of the most historically primitive spots in the East as a setting, "70 Communist leaders, representing the two factions of the Communist party and the United Communist party, gathered in the ancient hotel on the top of Overlook Mountain on the morning of May 15, 1921, to compose their differences and unite in a single group, to be known as the Communist Party of America," said the article.

"This assembly was not only at the command of Lenin and Zinoviev of the Communist International, but it was accompanied with the threat that if the factional differences were not put aside and a united front presented for invading the labor unions of the United States, no more money would be furnished from Moscow for financing the revolutionary movement in this country. Up to that time Moscow had contributed money to both of these factions, but had decided that their hostility to each other was neutralizing the results of their work."

A personal emissary of Lenin and Zinoviev was alleged to have dominated the session. "Silent and taciturn, this emissary met the 70 delegates near Kingston, N. Y., the narrative continued. "They were conveyed to the foot of Overlook mountain in automobiles. Guards stationed them along the roads. For more than two weeks these guards had been stationed in the vicinity of Fort Montgomery, Tannersville, Saugerties and Kingston. Trains arriving at these towns were observed by sentries. A guard remained behind the delegates to watch the village marshal in Woodstock. Other guards were scattered around the countryside as farm hands. There were guards also in the Grand Central Station at New York."

"When the party reached the hotel, military discipline was alleged to have been inaugurated. Delegates were forbidden to write letters or take notes. Twice a day everyone was searched. An "out-of-bounds" was established, and as night approached sentries could be seen signaling each other with flashlights from the mountain tops that all was well."

Thus, according to the article, was born the Communist Party of America, and the Central Executive Committee of the party was chosen from among the prime leaders of the Communist organizations throughout the country. These committee members were alleged to have had places on the central executive committee of the workers party when that party was founded.

"Mass action in the workers' seizure of labor unions and converting them into militant enterprises, arising from within the American Federation of Labor and, in particular, the United Mine Workers of America," was the platform adopted, declares the article.

"The extreme radicals are promoting the revolutionary movement, and a dozen intermediate degrees of liberal radicals and 'parlor pinks' are cooperating with them intimately and closely so that the contact is complete from end to end of the scale," the article charged, referring to organizations alleged to be allied with the Communists. "There is no breaking point."

A larger volume of pernicious and radical activity is centered around Los Angeles than any other city in the United States, with the exception of the metropolitan district of

New York. Revolutionary radicalism is profitable around Los Angeles because it is made up of wealthy intellectuals there who are dabbling in it.

"Pernicious and revolutionary propaganda distributed among the coal miners in the strike of 1922 and intended to arouse them to violence and 'mass action' was in a number of instances, turned out by so-called popular authors and novelists in Los Angeles who are receiving from $500 to $800 a month from the 'intellectual pinks' of that vicinity for doing that sort of thing."

MME. LENGLEN HELPED IN AID FOR SOLDIERS

PARIS, Sept. 15.—Suzanne Lenglen, world champion tennis player, was one of a bevy of pretty girls actresses and society women prominent in a drive organized under the auspices of a Paris newspaper during the closing days of the season. The drive was to provide sweets and tobacco for the French soldiers in the Ruhr.

Suzanne reaped a great harvest of paper francs until she reached a group of Americans and Englishmen engaged in a discussion of our people. The group was around a table laden with decidedly non-Volstead drinkables.

"Have you a little contribution for the poudus in the Ruhr?" asked Mme. Lenglen in her sweetest voice. A Britisher, who appeared to be a better command of the French language than his companions, apparently interpreting a unanimous opinion, replied:

"Mademoiselle Lenglen, when your government decided to occupy the Ruhr she not only failed to ask our advice but did so against the definite warnings of our people. The French government sent its soldiers into the Ruhr and should look after them." Noting the pained look on Suzanne's face he added more kindly: "Any time you are making collection for French war widows and orphans don't fail to come around and see us. There will be a thousand franc note ready for you."

Prince Aga Khan, when approached by one of the pretty actresses of the French stage on a similar errand, took an entirely different view of the question.

"Certainly, my dear," said the Indian prince, emerging from a parmut booth after cashing in a substantial bet on one of his own horse. Prince Aga Khan's hands were filled with bills of fifty and hundred franc denomination but he looked at them disdainfully. The pretty girl's heart fluttered as the prince began searching his pockets with the evident intention of producing one of large denomination.

After a thorough search of his pocketbook his choice finally settled upon a bill which he handed the girl. She could hardly suppress an explanation of disappointment. It was a ten franc note.

"Good wine rejoices the heart of man," says an old French adage. With this text, Gaston Gerard, mayor of Dijon, capital of Burgundy, is leaving for America. With the help of a collection of films he will endeavor in a series of lectures in the principal cities to convince the citizens that good wine is "milk of the aged."

M. Gerard would prefer to strengthen his arguments by appealing to representative collection of samples of the best vintages from his province, but failing this he hopes to prove that good wine should be classed with "fancy red" whiskey.

First in line to give an opinion, is the mercer of dressmakers. Mindful of this age long reputation, M. Germain, director of a museum devoted to preserving the history of the city, is organizing a section set apart for female costumes.

Brooding cooking fresh inspiration in past styles will find a collection of fashions and vagaries from the Middle Ages down to the present. Fashionable empire gowns, crinolines, bustles, leg of mutton sleeves and everything pertaining to feminine apparel has its place in an appropriate period setting.

The basis of this section is a collection formed by an artist, M. Leduc, in 1859 to which later creation have been added. It is a marvel of color, rich fabrics and historical accuracy.

WOMAN IS NAMED COUNTY TREASUR

(By The Associated Press)

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Sept. 15.—For the first time in the history of Virginia a woman has been appointed to the position of county treasurer and a notable feature is the fact that the appointment comes from the son of a president of the United States and at the old home of that president, when Mrs. Annie Asher Smith, widow of George L. Smith was named to fill out the unexpired term of her husband in York county.

Mrs. Smith was given the appointment by Judge Tyler from the old residence in Charles City county. York county was one of the original shires of Virginia the other being Accomac, Northampton, Charles City and Elizabeth City.

George L. Smith who died on September 11 had held the position of treasurer of York county for sixteen years consecutively. Before her marriage she was Miss Annie Asher. Under her husband's will she takes heir to his entire estate and Judge Tyler has made her heir to the office her husband's faithfully administered.

LINCOLN STANDS THE TEST

MAKES NEW MILEAGE RECORD

September 14th, 1923.

Messrs. Crowell Auto Co., Danville, Va.

Gentlemen: ATTENTION MR. J. H. DILLARD

We appreciate very much the opportunity of having you in your gasoline mileage test made with the Four-Passenger Sport Model Lincoln. We are pleased to make affidavit to you to the effect that the distance covered in this test was 42.2 and that the gasoline consumed was 2.11 less than two gallons, giving an average of 21.1 miles per gallon, which we consider remarkable performance for any eight-cylinder car.

We also want you to know that not only the mile age obtained impressed us so greatly but also the comfort, ease and pulling power.

We are pleased to recommend as a value that we can readily appreciate why the manufacturers consider the Lincoln "A" class car.

Post-Season Series Starts In Greensboro Today

Grandstand Gaff

The Last Week. Baseball is America's greatest pastime. As regularly as spring winds blow, thousands of fans flock to the ball fields and ball, and just as regularly comes Fall that means a postponement of diamond activities for several months. Fans of Southern Virginia and North Carolina are this week seeing the last of the great sport until another season. For this week, Herb Murphy is to be thanked by Danville fans. Our baseball would have ended with Saturday had not Murphy collected the crew that today starts a series with the Carolinians at Greensboro. Give them the glad hand for there will be new faces in the line-up next year and probably your favorite will be winning applause in another city and State when another season rolls around. There is something about these players of Murphy's you can't help but admire. All paid players, for the most part from far off states, they have won honors and may win a pennant because they get in every day and fight for Danville with as much fierceness as the college star who would die for the varsity.

Some Crowds. Despite the tang of the Fall-like atmosphere along about 4 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow Greensboro will be thinking she's the metropolis of the Southland. For it seems as if any more Danville fans head towards the Gate City another road will have to be built. The enthusiasm shown has something behind it. Danville is this week fighting for her first pennant and the "Sove League." This winter will be warmer and happier knowing the old field at Stonewall Park has witnessed a hunting. Greensboro will turn out in full force for they are aware of the battle before them. The "Fighting Virginians" Murphy's men are called and take our word that title will stick for all time after this week.

The Odds Ours. Perchance it is favoritism but we see the Tobaccoists standing a few points ahead as the two clubs open the big week of the year. On Rube Cress, Mickle O'Quinn and Jerry Jackson the Carolinians pin their hopes. Letting the first two stand Jerry Jackson's lame wrist won't help him any, but have you thought what they are pitted against—Wilson, Gibson, Maitland, Twombly, and Ellington as a relief hurler. Behind the plate Danville has the edge in Dave Cochlin and Lew Kearney over Pierre and Hayworth. The inner and outer works run more even—But watch Eddie on the paths and "Tree" at bat.

Shay and Jackson. Two other Piedmonters—Francis Shay and Jerry Jackson—will journey down to Charlotte with Freddie Dorman. The Greensboro star and the brother of "Shoeless Joe" last week became hirings of Dick Hoblitzel. The purchase price is not known but Manager Carroll made a "bad trade" if he dropped either for a small pittance. Both have a future ahead.

Relaxation Saturday. The Greensboro and Danville clubs in their final tilt scheduled here Saturday "took it easy" but the contest could not be termed a farce for real baseball cropped up at times. The players deserved their holiday, especially the hurlers, who considered the strain under which they finished the half and what faced them this week. Dave Harris and Floyd Trezler copped the day's hitting honors, and as a pitcher, Faber O'Hara is a blooming good outfielder.

O'Charlie. The Greensboro fans now yell "Oh!" at two of their players—"O'Hara and O'Quinn." Wonder if the Murphy men won't make "em yell "O'Charlie time another payday rolls around.

The Bee's Matinee. While the two clubs battle in Greensboro the fans remaining in Danville will have to keep in touch with the games through the Register-Bee office. Starting at the opening of the game with the announcements the game will be announced in front of the office each half inning play. Time must be given for the transmission of the messages but through this system the fans at home will have the advantage of knowing how every play is made, how every man goes out or scores. Our sole admonition is not to bet too heavily on Union street, you know bluecoat headquarters are just around the corner.

All-Star Selection. In the sport section fans will find The Bee's idea of the "League's Best." Some of the men who occupy berths on the first team, and also on the second will draw criticism, but in your criticism remember the entire season not just one big day. Forget favoritism and then select your color bearers.

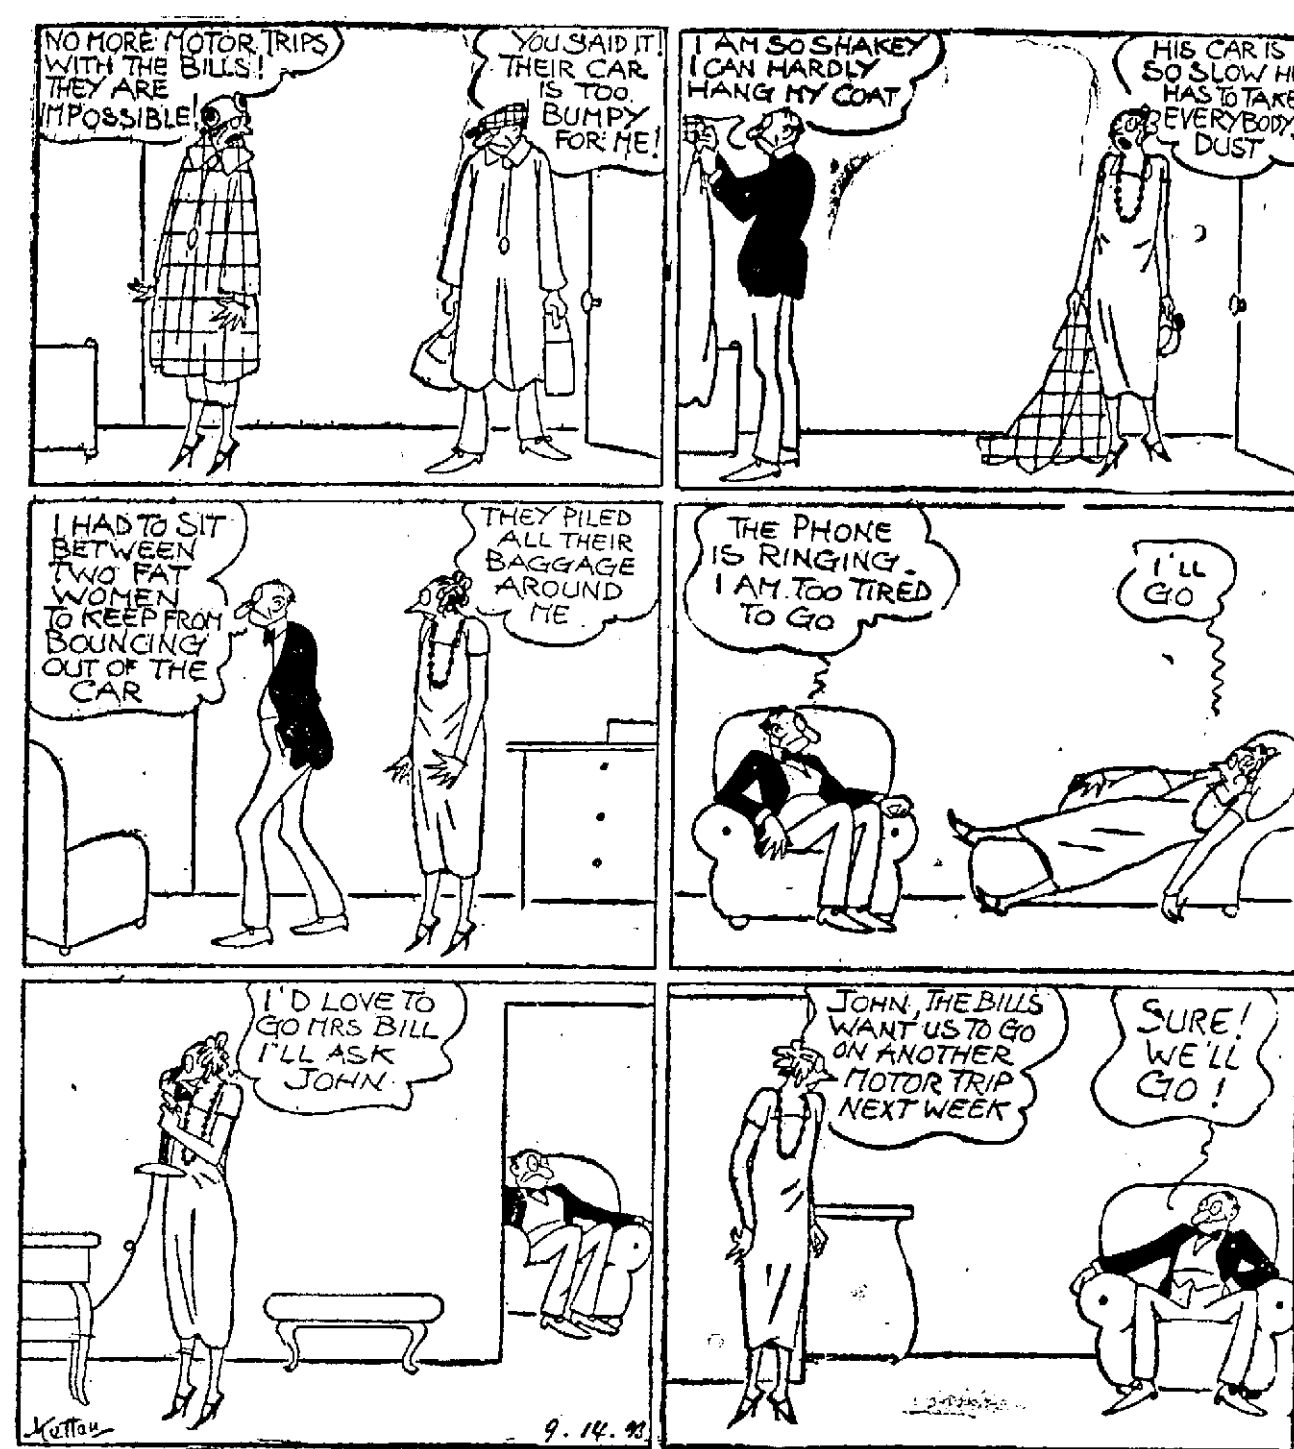

RIVERA TAKES OATH OF OFFICE

(By The Associated Press) MADRID, Sept. 15.—General Miguel Primo Rivera, Marquis De Estella, head of the revolutionary movement which overthrew the Albucares ministry, took the oath of office today as president of the council ministers before King Alfonso. The ceremony had a somewhat dramatic aspect. Former minister of justice Lopez Munos, who, in conformity with the law, was required to verify the oath, was absent, sending word that he was indisposed. The inspector general of the Royal Palace was sent off to find him and having located the former minister, returned with him and the oath of office was administered to Primo Rivera. The new premier submitted to the king various decrees for signature. New cabinet members and generals representing the different branches of the army were appointed. With general Rivera in control, supported as he is by King Alfonso, the situation in the capital is, so far as outward appearances go, normal. The courts re-opened today.

BARNARDI GETS FALLS

(By The Associated Press) BRISTOL, Va., Tenn., Sept. 15.—Tony Barnardi, light heavyweight champion of the south, tonight defeated Sam Clapham, world's champion light heavyweight wrestler in a bout staged at Saltville, Va. Clapham won the first fall in less than two minutes. The second fall went to Barnardi in less than two minutes. Barnardi won the third fall after 69 minutes of wrestling with a "flying mare."

STAMBOULISKY HOARDED CASH

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 15.—Stamboulisky, the premier of Bulgaria who was slain last month during the reaction against the peasant government of his he was the leader, had a tidy sum of money hidden away for eventuality. The authorities have found $70,000 in his house in Sofia. He was generally reputed to be a hoarder, and it is thought to have planned considerable money outside the country. Endeavors are being made to get this also.

Most of the money found here was in Bulgarian currency, but among the collection were two American on dollar bills.

Stamboulisky's salary as premier was 100,000 levas, or $100 a month.

Heavy frosts and snow hasten harvesting in central west. Damage to Wisconsin tobacco crop estimated at $300,000.

BASEBALL DEFICIT IN DURHAM IS $8,000

DURHAM, Sept. 15.—With the close of the Durham baseball season two days ago, local club officials are taking an inventory. The inventory, according to Secretary Gordon Carver, shows that the stockholders stand to lose a matter of $8,000.

The club officials also announce that they have no inside knowledge of a deal pending whereby George Smith will supplant Lee Gooch as manager of the Durham club. The rumor has been broadcast ever since Whitted, a former big leaguer who managed the Toledo club for parts of two seasons, joined the local club.

It is also announced that Tommy McMillan, first sacker and Vesper catcher, brought to Durham in the deal with Toledo earlier in the season, have been recalled by the American association team. The two players came to Durham along with a wad of cash in exchange for Paul Dannielly, a star outfielder.

MAYOR WOODING RETURNS

Mayor Harry Wooding, accompanied by Mrs. Wooding and his daughter, returned Friday, p. m., from Roanoke where they spent the week attending the state reunion of Confederate veterans and Sons of Veterans. Captain Wooding said yesterday that the delegates had been handsomely entertained by Roanoke and that the convention was interesting not only because of its deliberations but because of the opportunity of meeting old comrades in arms. Social features included two balls and numerous excursions were arranged for the visitors. The fight for the scene of the next convention would be peculiarly appropriate if held at Charlottesville where a statue of General Robert E. Lee will be unveiled during the convention week. Captain Wooding said yesterday that he was in favor of bringing the 1925 convention to Danville. It is now many years since Danville acted most to the thinning ranks of the old soldiers and Captain Wooding expressed the opinion that it is Danville's turn to entertain the state organization and that at the proper time he would take steps in that direction.

TILDEN RETAINS TENNIS HONORS

(By The Associated Press) GERMANTOWN, CRICKET CLUB, Pa., Sept. 15.—William T. Tilden, 2nd, the tall angular Philadelphia, retained the lawn tennis singles championship of the United States this afternoon when he defeated William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, in the final round at the Germantown Cricket Club. Tilden won in straight sets, 6-4; 6-1; 6-4.

The victory in such decisive sweeping fashion, was the fourth national championship triumph for the Philadelphia in succession, the second in order over Johnston. It marked him the world's greatest player, for his California antagonist this year is rated world's champion, by virtue of his victory at Wimbledon, England, early in the summer.

Tilden was master of the match from the outset. His carefully planned campaign of play came to fruition as he had desired. He drove with relentless force, played with care and accuracy that was uncanny, wore his opponent ragged with long cross court shots, and throughout, prevented the Californian from exercising his famous forehand driving shots.

The match lacked all elements of Tilden's triumph over Manuel Alfonso, the Spanish champion, on Tuesday, when Tilden's play was scintillating in its variety and force. The champion had in mind the outcome of last year's match, when, through his slow starting, Johnston won two successive sets and was well on the way to a third before Tilden gained command of the situation.

Today Tilden did not spare his rival. His flashy play was displaced by a methodical, careful and scrupulously exact style of getting everything that Johnston could send, and varying his returns from side to side of the court to keep the Little Californian on the run and tire him. That Tilden succeeded with his plan was evident at the start of the second set. Johnston, unable to get set his forehand shots, was pressed so desperately that his muscular and nervous energy were under strain, began lightning his strokes. The result was that he began netting with great frequency.

He strove to overcome this tendency, which beat him a year ago, by coming to the net and risking being passed. When he did, he found that Tilden's return was so low and fast that they either shot by him for placements or were deflected from his racket into the net.

Tilden's superiority is shown by the points he earned twenty eight made six fewer errors and made 24 placements to 14 for his rival.

Today's meeting in tournament play was the thirteenth between Tilden and Johnston. Before the match each had won six times, and each, also, had lost 23 sets.

All attendance records fell by the board when approximately 14,000 persons were crowded into the enclosure.

CRISTOBAL FAN LOSES HIS BERTH

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The mighty blow which last night felled Luis Angel Firpo to ten seconds of glory on the canvas of the Polo Grounds, today knocked a smartly dressed, middle aged gentleman from Cristobal, Panama, from a palatial berth on the steamship Ebro which left today bearing to their homes several scores of South Americans. The citizen of Cristobal had reserved the luxurious accommodations, intending to pay for it out of money he expected to win on the Argentine.

AMERICAN TEAM BEATEN

(By The Associated Press) WESTBURY, Sept. 15.—The British army polo team today defeated the American four 12 to 10, in the second game of the series at the Meadowbrook club for the world's military polo championship. As the American won the first contest Wednesday, a third game will be played to determine the title holder.

Danville Wins Last Scheduled Contest

Danville took the final game of the regular league season from Greensboro yesterday by 7 to 5 in a perfunctory exhibition, due mainly to the fact that Manager Carroll, of the visitors, seeking to conserve his boxmen for the post-season game next week, sent substitutes to pitch.

Faber O'Hara, outfielders, pitched the first three innings and was tapped for seven hits which netted six runs, or sufficient to win, as the self pitched third innings yielded three hits and one run, while First Baseman Cox hurled the last inning, yielding one hit and no runs.

Danville battled in a run in the second inning on two-base hits, and hammered the men across in the third.

In the fourth hits by Carroll and Teague, followed by home runs by Cox and Harris, gave the visitors their four runs, and they added another on a hit and an error.

The crowd rather enjoyed the game, particularly the efforts of the visiting pitchers, and of course, they were pleased with the result.

In the 7th inning New York won the game when Schanz and Scott hit home runs on successive pitched balls.

With the score tied in the sixth inning, Meusel won for New York with a drive for the circuit.

Three successive singles and two walks off Whitehill started the inning. Holloway walked two more and hit Rice, Ruel and Harris, up for the second time in the inning, again drove out singles to wind up the contest.

PHILADELPHIA 8; ST. LOUIS 1

(By The Associated Press) PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Connie Mack was frustrated in his endeavor to make it four straight wins when the St. Louis Browns won the second game of a double-header here today. In the first game Eddie Rommel twice the Athletics to an 8 to 1 victory. Hasty, who was on the hill for the Athletics, pitched a remarkable ball but the Browns connected when his meant runs and this, together with several walks, spelled defeat to the Athletics. Van Gilder pitched great ball.

NEW YORK 10; CHICAGO 4.

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The New York Yankees won their fourth victory of the last five games played with the Chicago club by a score of 10 to 4 here today. One big inning was all that was necessary for the Yankees to turn the tide in their favor when they were helped by four Chicago errors, two of them by Eddie Collins in the third inning. Babe Ruth in his first time up drew his 148th base on balls, breaking his major league record which he made in 1920, the year he hit 54 home runs.

OWNER OF ISLAND
MAKES GIFT OF IT
TO INHABITANTS

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The gift of an island to its inhabitants is rather unusual, but such a gift has just been made of a large part of the island of Lewis, one of the outer Hebrides by Lord Leverhulme, the great soap magnate.

Lord Leverhulme purchased the island sometime ago, planning to organize fisheries and other industries there, under the control of a commercial company. The project failed because of the only failure recorded in Leverhulme's expanding and varied business career.

The cause of the failure was chiefly that the hard headed and independent islanders objected to becoming employees of the company. Even though assured they would make more money, they preferred to do their fishing and run their small farms as their own master.

The most valuable feature of the island is the famous Stornoway castle and its supporting estate. The islanders, who number about 4,000, have been rather undecided about accepting Lord Leverhulme's present, some fearing the castle would become a white elephant on their hands.

It was even talked of asking the noble lord to submit to them the report of his revenues from and expenditures on the property in the next few years.

Now, however, the Stornoway town council has voted to accept the gift and doubtless the whole gift will be ratified by the island government.

Some of those who take more than a passing interest in English Channel commerce are searching for an explanation of the curious fact that three visitors from the American continent have crossed the channel within the last five weeks while in 48 years of previous effort only two men were able to accomplish the feat. A. Alexander, president of the channel swimming club, says the weather conditions have been abnormal and the water exceptionally warm, and the cooperation among the swimmers with interchange of advice and help aided the three recent conquerors of the channel.

The reason the Americans have been more successful than the English, he believes, is because the natives must swim in natatoriums, since the channel water is far too cold to enter save for a few weeks yearly, while the Americans are able to enjoy sea bathing at any time.

One of the first things noticed by Americans newly arrived in England is that most of the British wear hic-ker and thicker soled foot gear than the Americans. While thick soles do not necessarily mean better boots, they are considered a safeguard to the feet, the foot being a delicate organ has discovered after circulating medical and high school authorities all over the kingdom.

Shoddy footwear, it is declared, accounts for a large percentage of chest complaints, particularly bronchitis, and the medical officers in some towns report that from 20 to 50 per cent of illness arises from this cause. Birmingham's medical officer holds that damp feet are chiefly responsible for rheumatism and reduction in power of resistance to other ills.

The association is planning a campaign against the manufacture of timely goods for the purpose of bringing about a higher standard

SAVAGE KING SHOOT
MEN TO TEST RIFLE
(From the Detroit News)

Interesting stories of the late King Buno of Swaziland, the told in "Adventures in Swaziland." The author is Dr. Owen Rowe O'Neill, who in spite of his Irish name is a South African Boer.

King Buno was a savage of the old school. He preferred a gun which he could drink to gold, to which he could only look at. He drank the gin all at once as soon as he got it.

On one occasion, when he had also come into possession of a Mauser rifle and cartridges, he had his whole army paraded in front of him, and began a sort of shooting competition into the motionless ranks. The savage King slipped a clip into his Mauser, the metallic click intensified by the silence.

He raised the rifle, sighting down first one line of warriors and then the other. The next instant a shot rang out and a plumed Swazi pitched forward and lay writhing in the sunlight. "Four more shots rang out," says Dr. O'Neill, "and at each a plumed head came down."

AMUSEMENTS.
"THE FOOL" COMING.
Sensational Dramatic Success at The Majestic, Monday, Sept. 24th.

One of the most notable attractions in many years, "The Fool," by Channing Pollock, which will be presented by the Selwyns at the Majestic Theatre on Monday, Sept. 24th. This play was a sensational dramatic triumph for more than a year in New York and during a run of six months in Boston.

No other play in the history of the career ever before swept the country with the same interest, and this occurred first before "The Fool" was six months old, with the same intense desire to see it continuing. There is hardly a town of any size that has not heard of "The Fool." For months past every theatre manager in the country has been besieged with inquiries asking when the play would come their way. Now that "The Fool" is announced for four weeks hence, there is likely to be calls for seats to be reserved immediately. If any play can pack our theatre it should be "The Fool."

It has been an enigma for years among theatrical managers just why a single play that has never been seen outside of one of the big cities, should sweep through the air as it were, of entire country, as the one play that must not be missed, and like an endless chain keeps going on and on until it ultimately gets there. There may be a reason for this in the present instance, since "The Fool's" message is vital to everybody and penetrates the thinking mind as no other play has ever done. Thinking people cannot get "The Fool" out of their heads after leaving the theatre, and it may be that their subconscious minds are working on the receptive subconscious minds of others and so the thought of "The Fool" is carried out everywhere. Anyway, it is an interesting thing for some psychologist to explain.

Prices 50c to $2.50. Seat sale opens at box office on Thursday Sept. 24th.

UNUSUAL FOLK IN DAY'S NEWS

The Truth As He Sees It

(Special to The Bee.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—"Write the truth as you see it," insisted Mrs. Thomas Temple Hoyne to her husband.

"I would be a perfect ass to do that," he replied.
"Well, most men are asses," said she, "and you need not feel any great shame in admitting that you are one." And so he wrote "Confession" and "The Truth As He Sees It," a new book that has made an instant hit and within two weeks of its publication, even before there has been time to distribute it widely, has gone into a second edition.

But now Mrs. Hoyne is not satisfied. She insists that in a chapter which she was not allowed to see, entitled "The Ladies, Doggane 'Em," her husband has spoken unjustly of the fair sex.

"There never was a woman in the world," she says, "who was not naturally loyal and honest and sincere. When you see one that is otherwise you can always find the cause in some man who has deceived her. I do not care what my husband says about women, or what anyone else says, either. For most of the success men achieve in this world women are responsible, and for the presence of a good many men in heaven instead of in the other place they are responsible too."

Daily Puzzle

A shiek had nineteen fine Arabian steeds. He resolved to keep his favorite horse for himself and promised, on a certain day, to divide the remaining horses among his three sons: the eldest son to have one-half the second one-third; and the youngest one-ninth of the horses. Unfortunately, one of the horses died the day before the division was to be made, so when the sons assembled they found they had seventeen horses; and seventeen is divisible by neither two, three nor nine. The shiek, however, devised a plan whereby the horses could be distributed in accordance with the terms. How did he arrange it?

Saturday's answer:

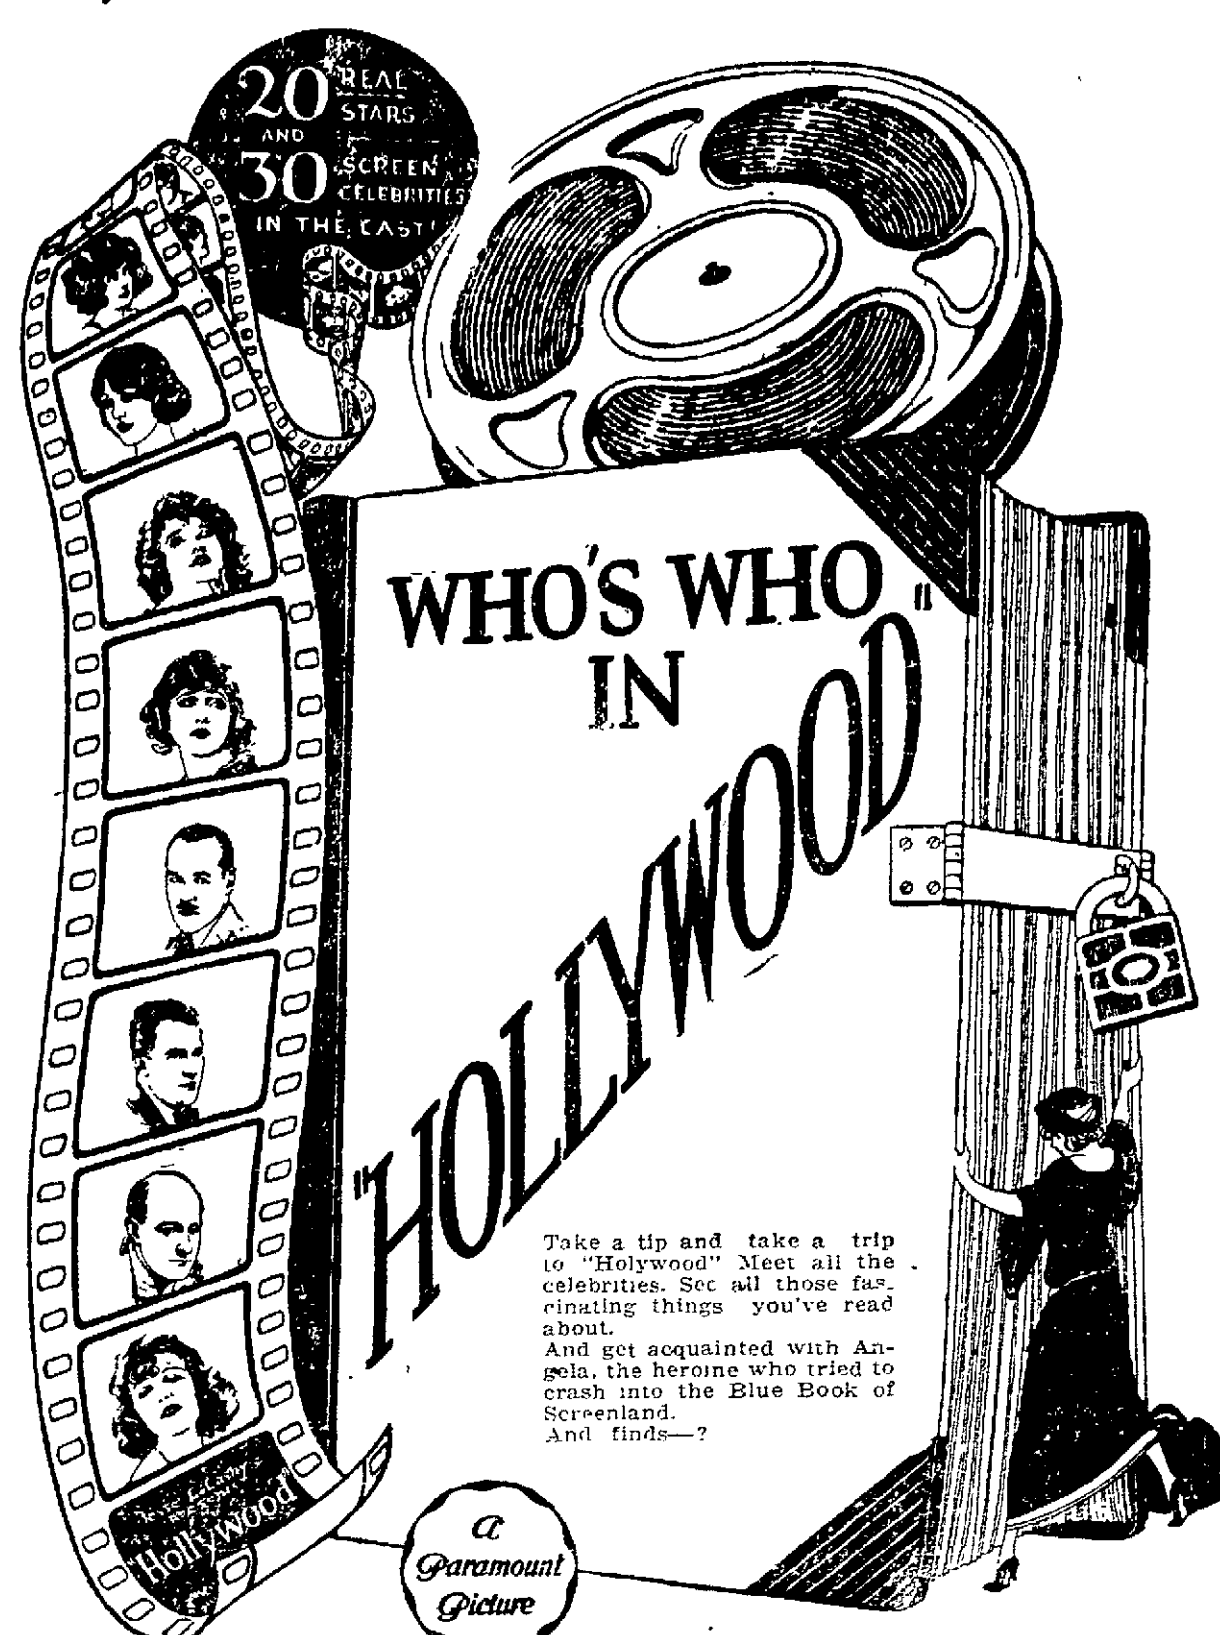

4	1	4	2	5	2
1	x	1	5	x	5
4	1	4	2	5	2
1	7	1	0	9	0
7	x	7	9	x	9
1	7	1	0	9	0

The four squares show how the shiek boss fooled their professor. Their original order was three in a row, making nine to a corridor, and 24 in all. The four rearranged each show nine in a corridor, but the totals are 26, 24, 32 and 34.
